Dear Ahmed

It is with great unhappiness that I write to you, and I do so only because, having seen Veronica lately, I am most upset at what she tells me about your denial of your financial indebtedness to Bob.

I cannot understand why you should make such a denial: Bob kept me regularly informed of the position at the time, and told me how he was giving you money each month in response to your pleas to keep your shoe shop going.

He and I spoke about it again the last time I saw him, in hospital, two weeks before he died. He again confirmed what he had previously told me, namely, that he had lent you a total of about R7 000.

I am sorry to have to write this letter. I am only too conscious of the good things that you and Fatima did for Bob. But I feel obliged to write to you for the sake of Veronica and the children.

Yours sincerely,

BENJAMIN POGRUND
