THE STORY OF KUTLWANONG

The story of a school is nearly always the story of an individual or two, but in the case of Kutlwanong it is the story of a regrettable number whose names will never recorded. Time and again during the past few years officials of the Deaf and Dumb Association have been asked to assist Native Commissioners, Magistrates and others confronted with uneducated deaf-mutes quite incapable of expressing themselves.

At last the Deaf Association, with the aid of the National Council for the Deaf, managed to secure a small farm at Roodepoort and resolved to train some of these lads instead of allowing them to grow up a misery to themselves and a menace to society.

So Kutlwanong was opened quietly on the 1st July 1944, an African teacher and his wife being in charge of a small family of a dozen deaf and dumb African lads.

It was not difficult to persuade the Union Education authorities that this school would meet a real need so they sent an inspector whose report led to official recognition as from the 1st April, 1945, but not until January 1946 was it possible to appoint a qualified teacher of the deaf. From that date Mrs. W. M. Goyne became principal, and her chief task will be the training of African assistants for this very specialized work.

The Deaf Association believe that the public will support an effort of this nature, especially when they know that every shilling they give is doubled by Government subsidy, and in the case of donations for building purposes every pound is worth three because the Union Education Department have promised two-thirds of the cost of approved buildings.

Negotiations are now taking place so that building operations may start in the very near future. At the gathering on the 13th April visitors will have an opportunity to see the uncomfortable conditions which prevail at present, and they will also see the lay-out of the proposed buildings, and - most important - they will have an opportunity to promise a donation if unable to give one on the spot.

It is hoped that the first section of the new buildings will be ready for occupation by September at the latest, when they will be opened by the Right Hon. J.H. Hofmeyr, Minister of Finance and Education.

Bring your friends to the party on the 13th April, make it a really happy affair full of promise for the future welfare of our silent friends.
